ROANOKE DROPS ANOTHER GAME

This Time McCoy's Wildness Was Responsible for the Defeat.

After the First Inning He Settled Down and Pitched Winning Ball, But it Was Then Too Late -Roanoke Was Unable to Hit Either Leach or Foreman Very Hard-The Magic City Boys Put Up a Great Fielding Game

PETERSBURG. June 4 .- Rosnoke lost and Petersburg won to day's game in the first inning by McCoy's giving three men bases on balls and allowing the home team to make four hits, one of which was a home run, scoring three others. After this fatal inning McCoy settled down to work and pitched winning ball, and he was supported finely by his entire team. Several times the bases were full but he would retire the side without a run. Three of the locals were cut off at the plate while trying to score. Leach pitched the three first innings, when he retired in favor of Foreman who finished the game, allowing the Roanoke men only three hits

The game began with Sanford at the bat who was given his base on balls. Brodie made a clean hit and Kelly struck out. Stafford got first on balls.

Brodie made a clean hit and Kelly struck out. Stefford got first on balls, filling the bases Farrell brought Sanford and Brcdie in on a corker past second. Hunnicutt scored Stafford on a scorifice hit to McCoy. Myers was given his base on balls and Leach knocked the leather over the left field fence for a home run. Manager Kiefer struck out, ending the inning with six runs to their credit.

For Roanoke Captain O'Hagan w. nt oat, Myers to first. Menefee knocked a fly to Stafford in right field. Leach let McHooveter walk on four balls, but all Crockett could do was to knock a little one to Farrell, retiring the side. Neither side scored in the second or third. In the fourth Petersburg added one run. Kiefer the first man to the bat made a two base hit to left center. Bredie got first on an error of Demoss Kelly hit to second and forced Brodie, but Kiefer scored. Kelly tried to steal second, but Smith threw him out, ending the side.

Neither side scored in the lifth although the Petersburgs got the bases full. In the sixth Petersburg got in another run, and Roanoke broke the ice by sending McHooveter across the plate. Menefee hit to Brodie, who dropped it, and Menefee beat it to first. McHooveter knocked a slow one to Myers and he repeated Brodie's petermance, and both men were safe. Menefee tried to steal third but Klefer said no and Myers steal third but Kiefer said no and Myers put him out.

Crockett fanned the sir three times and went back to the bench. Demoss hit to right field, Stafford let it pass him and McHooveter scored. Frech retired the side by striking out. Petersburg could not score after the sixth inning on account of the gilt-edge playing by the visitors, they cutting two men off at the plate and retiring the side with the bases full.

The Senate Wasted Another Day on the Tariff Bill.

A Vote on the Sugar Amendments Will be Reached To-day and the Sugar Schedule Will be Disposed of Before Adjournment-The Debate on the State Bank Tax Bill Nearing Its End in the House.

Washington, June 4 .- The Senate to-day entered on the second half year of the session, the tenth week of the consideration of the tariff bill, and the third day of the discussion of the sugar schedule. It took a quarter of an hour after the stated hour of meeting to secure a quorum. The first piece of business done was the passage of a joint ness done was the passage of a joint resolution appropriating $10,000 for the expanses of inquiries and investigations ordered by the Senato.

On schedule time all pending business was put aside and the tariff bill was taken up The amendments to paragraph 182, effered by the finance committee, changing the time when the reveal of the sugar bounty is to take effect from July 1, 1894, to January 1, 1895, were agreed to. Subsequently, by unanimous consent, that action was reconsidered and the amendments still remain open.

Vest recalled his controversy with Aldrich before adjournment on Saturday, when Aldrich asserted "positively, if not aggressively," that there was no sugar stock certificates in the market in 1890 Vest fortified his own statement by reading from an almanac of 1891, showing that in the year 1890.

market in 1890 Vest fortified his own statement by reading from an almanac of 1891, showing that in the year 1890, 8,520,000 shares of sugar stock certificates had been sold in New York.

Allison took the floor and argued against the repeal of the sugar bounty and against placing sugar on the dutiable list. He offered to yield the floor to Vest and to lot him inform the Senate as to what would be the average rate of duty per pound on sugar for consumpduty per pound on sugar for consumption, under the present complicated schedule. Vest said. "That will be done."

Jones (Dem., Ark.) also stated that there was no difficulty about arriving at the conclusion stated by Mr. Vest. Toller suggested that the explanation should be made for the benefit of Senators who confessed their inability to understand the question and Jones said that he would do so with pleasure. Allison then proceeded with his argument. He concluded with these words: "If I had my way I would strike from this bill every vestige of a duty on sugar and would continue the bounty on sugar, as we are morally bound to do, till 1905; and if additional revenue were necessary I would go around among Jones replied to Allison and defended the schedule as proposed by the finance committe. His remarks were mostly of a technical character, involving the various points as to raw sugar above and below certain points of saccharine strength.

Peffer asked Jones what would be the average increase of the price of sugar per pound to the consumer over its present price. Jones replied that he supposed the in crease would be about 1/2 cent a pound, it might exceed that, or it might be a

I gave notice last Friday that I would on and after to-day (unless much better progress was made) ask for longer and later sessions. "It is now nearly the usual hour of adjournment; and if I can get unanimous consent agreement to take the vote on the pending amendment at an early hour to morrow and upon all other early hour to morrow and upon all other amendments to the sugar schedule, without further debate, after that hour. I shall be glad to accommodate the convenience of every Senator (and my own as well) by moving a brief executive session and then an adjournment. But unless such agreement can be reached, my sense of duty will compel me to stay here and asked the Senate to stay with me for longer hours. Can I get such agreement?"

Objections were made on the Republican side, and finally it was agreed that the vote on the pending amendment and on Manderson's proposed amendment "to continue the sugar bounty to 1905" be taken by 1 o'clock to morrow, and that on all other amendments debate shall be taken under the ten minute rule; and that the sugar schedule shall be disposed of before the adjournment to-morrow.

Rev. Dr. W. A. Harris, the president, has been at the head of colleges
